SATURDAY MORNING JULY 9 1870

The Snake Nation

A correspondent of the New York Tribune writing from [illegible] recently interrogated several of the Indians or Shoshones to be met with in that portion of the interior tribes [illegible] no dwindling, with a rapidity almost unprecedented even in the history of the decay of the aborigines of America From the small number of Indians it is considered certain that the Snake Indians are an offshoot of the Comanches though nothing is known as to the cause of this migration from the Canadian to the present place When Captain Lewis left Fort Hall on his journey across the continent in the fall of President Jefferson, the Snakes numbered 13 000, and were scattered over a vast extent of territory They roamed say the Tribune writer, along the Upper Platte Green River, Wind, Colorado and Sweetwater rivers and claimed all the lands between the Columbia and Missouri. Their eastern neighbors, the Dakotas (Sioux) and their northern possessions extended to the country of the Blackfeet West and south of them ranged the Camanches They were always a terror to the less powerful bands that occupied the country that is now Eastern Oregon and the fear they instilled was felt even west of the Cascade mountains We copy the following from the account before us

In 1812 a great division took place among the Indian tribes of the Rocky Mountains Those who had horses drove away the game and compelled those who had no horses to walk a long distance in order to hunt and obtain provisions The foot-men organized into what are now known as the Root Diggers, the Snakes sending out two bands of this kind In 1845 the Shoshones were divided into the Lampstick arms (Root Eaters) and Bonnacks (Bannocks) They then with the Utahs, inhabited the basin of Great Salt Lake, and extended as far south and west as the borders of California and New Mexico In 1850 they were divided into the assimilated tribes of Bonnacks (Bannocks), Yampatook arms (Root Eaters), Kootsiskick-arms (Buffalo Eaters), and Tookarika arms (Honey Eaters) Their numbers had then decreased from 13,000 to 4 000 souls Gen. Fremont in his expedition, came upon the Snake river in north latitude 42° and laughtade 109°. They had no houses, and lived principally upon roots, bugs and vermin In the topographical [illegible] of 1846, the land between Red Buttes of North Platte river and the junction of Big Sandy with Green river is laid down as "War Grounds of the Sioux and Snake Indians" The distance between the two points marked was 192 miles and it was the "Dark and Bloody Ground of the West." There took place the contests of the brave Dakotas and fierce Shoshones for more than half a century. The Snakes then claimed that their lands began at the mouth of the Sweetwater, but they seldom ventured so far east, even in time of war Their western boundary was along the Columbia and on the Snake river or Lewis Fork. The breadth of these lands was 760 miles and the length 800 miles.

The various names the Snakes extended as far north as the source of the Missouri and south to New Mexico, Texas and Arkansas Here are further particulars

Who the Bannocks are or where the came from is not certainly known, but probably they are one of the numerous branches of the Dakota family. They are now divided into two bands They roam in Summer from Soda Springs, Idaho, to Fort Hall, and in Winter live on the Wind River in Wyoming Territory Pi a moo (Big Finger) leads the other band of Bannocks living in summer near Virginia City, Montana, and in Winter on the Yellowstone. They have fine trout fishing along Snake River, and in winter subsist on dried buffalo and salmon The Hoo-soo-dee or Snakes (Lake Diggers) live near Salt Lake City. They are a very feeble band. In 1858 they became hostile, and on the 12th of January Gen. Conner, with the 2d Regiment of California Volunteers, made a forced march across the mountains; surprised them on the Bear River, and almost annihilated them It is said that 300 warriors were killed or drowned The Sagadika arms (Salmon Eaters) live on Snake River, and, as their name indicates, subsist on salmon. They are few in number, and now the largest band is Washakie's. They roam in summer on Bear and Green Rivers, and in winter on the reservation at Wind River. They eat deer, antelope and fish in Summer and dried buffalo in Winter There is another small band of Snakes called the Took a rika-kas (Sheep Eaters), who live along the spurs of mountain on the Salmon River, and hunt the Rocky mountain sheep.

Some remnants of the Snake nation are still found in South-eastern Oregon and in the neighboring region in Nevada. At this time the principal band, collected from all their former, county and numbering hardly more than one thousand persons, is situated on a reservation on the north-western corner of Wyoming Territory The reservation extends over the rich valleys of Little Wind and Big Wind rivers and is about one hundred miles square Of this remnant of their territory the whites are now trying to dispossess them and a conference has been had with the Indians by Gov Campbell, of Wyoming to persuade them to exchange or part with a portion of their reservation but they resolutely refuse all overtures. They are still dwindling rapidly, and in a few years this once powerful tribe must cease altogether to exist.

Good Advice Wasted

The Sacramento Union undertakes to give advice to the Democrats of Oregon It tells them what kind of a man they should select for Senator Here is a taste of the quality of its advice

To the young Democracy of Oregon a word in season may not be out of place. They must rest on existing facts, and they have leaders who do realize them They see that among the things accomplished by the war are the freedom of all men in this country the solemn obligation of the Government to pay the debt to the last dollar and its equally solemn obligation to recognize for all time as just and valid the new Articles of the Constitution and the laws of Congress enacted under them These changes were wrought by the Republican party, but they are no longer party measures, they now belong to the country and all parties are equally interested in sustaining them to the end that treason may be vindicated and another rebellion be averted The Oregonians should comprehend that no man who does not go the whole for the Senatorial office

Can the Union be serious when it lends to the Oregon Democracy such advice as this? It surely knows that they have triumphed on a repudiation platform and [illegible] expect them to go back on it, accept the fifteenth amendment and do all the other sensible things that it advises? If it does it has much to learn to get a correct idea of the kind of Democracy we have in Oregon

The Official Returns

We present this morning the full official returns of the recent election The highest vote was on Congressman and shows an aggregate of 22 883 Two years ago the vote on Congressman aggregated 23 369 Logan received 10 580 and Smith 11,789 In the recent election Wilson received 11,245 and Slater 11,583 The Republican vote on Congressman is therefore 665 greater than in the last election, while the Democratic vote is 201 smaller than then The highest vote for any candidate on the Democratic ticket in the late election was thrown for Mr Grover who received 11 726 votes which number is 66 less than the Democratic vote of two years ago We need not comment on these figures They show the political drift, and indicate unmistakingly what will be the result in the State in the election of 1872 The immigration now arriving will make Oregon one of the most reliable of the Republican States

A Great Work Fairly Under Way

The Minnesota Division of the Northern Pacific Railroad from the Dalles of the St Louis river to the Red River of the North St Louis river enters Lake Superior at its extreme western end at the Dalles of that stream are at the head of navigation fifty miles more above the mouth The Red River of the North forms the western boundary of Minnesota The length of the Minnesota division of the Northern Pacific Railroad is two hundred and thirty miles and this is the portion under contract for the completion of which July 1871 The contractors represent a combination of the three names of Ross Parsons & Co and the Minnesota firm of Brinkerhoff Morrison & Co The specifications require the road to be ironed and with rolling stock by this important section of the road within contract time The New York Times says that the many negotiations of the Company have already so far progressed as to insure prompt payments to the contractors and when the mortgage loan shall have been put into complete shape under the terms of the recent liberal joint resolution of Congress will 7 3-10 per cent bonds secured by a land grant of nearly 60 000 000 of acres it would appear that the financial success of the undertaking ought to be assured Jay Cooke is working in this enterprise with his well known energy He has ambition to push the road and he has taken hold of it in such a determined manner to make it successful so that his name may be honorably connected with this second and yet great transcontinental railway He desires to make it his monument to speak and in that refers bringing all the resources together he can rely on to ensure the rapid construction of the road This great enterprise is now fairly under way Work in sections long begun at this end and the whole will be completed [illegible] and the movements of these times) almost before we are able to realize it

Donn Piatt one of the smartest and most reckless of literary bummers hanging around Washington asserts that the late Republican party is the deadest thing above ground

A contemporary well says that if anybody thinks it worth while to ten dollar bill and a bottle of old rye will induce the Dons to put the said party on its legs again, at half an hour's notice, and swear that it is the only live party in the country, and sure to live forever

The Commercial says that if anybody undertakes to get up lawsuits to hinder the construction of the west side road he will find himself overwhelmed and ground to powder beneath the indignation and contumely of the citizens of this city and the west side counties Glad to hear these strong words Let us see if the capitalists (so called) who wouldn't build the road themselves, will now try to prevent its construction under another company

BRITISH COLUMBIA

The telegraph line is to be reconstructed between Victoria and Cariboo

A man named Joseph Chisnal working in the Seattle coal mines was killed a few days ago by the falling of a heavy piece of coal

The Victoria Standard seems to regard the scheme for the Canadian Pacific railway Utopian and impracticable And it is about right

This shipment of gold from Victoria by Wells Fargo & Co for 1869 was $1 324 871 84 The shipment for 1868 by the same firm was $1 730 587 08

A marine named Walter Watty belonging to the British flagship Zealous, which was lying at anchor at the mouth of Fraser river accidentally shot himself fatally the other day while engaged in target practice.

It is argued by the Victoria Colonist that there is nothing so very paradoxical in Englishmen celebrating the Fourth of July It thinks that British colonists at the present day owe much to the lesson that was taught the mother country when we achieved our independence

The Victoria Colonist has the following history of a wonderful [illegible] "A few years ago a stallion was sold in this city for $150 The purchaser took him to Oakland, California and swapped him for four lots of ground The stallion soon after died, but the lots withstood the great earthquake and are now worth the nice little sum of $32,000

For the purposes of financial calculations the population of British Columbia in entering the Dominion of Canada is fixed at 120 000—about ten times the actual figure It is stated that the basis of population was fixed at this high figure for the reason that statistics have shown that the Customs in British Columbia will yield three times more for the same amount of population, than in Canada This is to be balanced by enlarging the basis of population and making it up in other ways

CURRENT NOTES

The estimable wife of Red Cloud is said to have expressed a wild yearning desire for the scalp of Theodore Tilton, fancying that it will make a very serviceable, fancy looking door mat

It is said of one of the burlesque blondes At as actress she is equal to the great bulk of female stars now travelling in the dramatic milky way; as a dresser, she has even been in the front ranks and as an undresser, where the character requires it, she is equal to the emergency

An Eastern paper says There is a wonderful rush of immigrants to and through Kansas westward The cars on the different lines of railroad in that State have scarcely accommodations for the hundreds and thousands who are seeking homes in the far West. The tide will finally reach Oregon

A paper is published in the Cherokee Nation, one page of which is printed in what is supposed to be the Indian tongue One of its exchanges says "It is the worst case of pickled tongue we have come in contact with The page looks like there had been a nitro glycerine explosion in a typefoundry"

The Richmond (Va) Dispatch says a crazy woman who has long been haunting Hollywood Cemetery in that city, has been taken up, by the Superintendent there She had burrowed a hole in the grave of her lover and had night after night made her bed there With all the strength of madness she resisted those who in kindness were trying to tear her away from her melancholy post.

OREGON

Gov Woods has issued a proclamation declaring the result of the late election

The money orders issued at the Oregon City Postoffice for the year 1870 amount to $ 899

At the celebration of the Fourth at Soda Springs Clackamas county, about 900 persons were present and everything passed off well

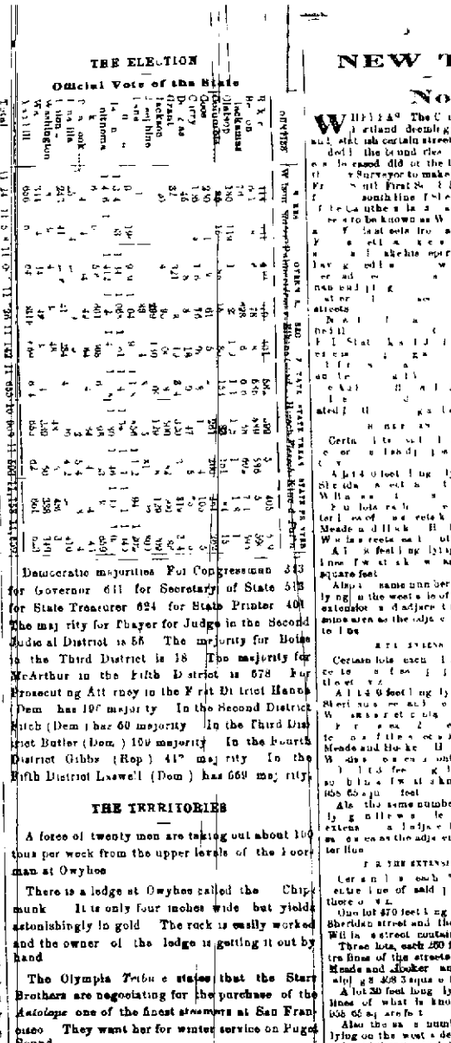
The Enterprise states that certain persons are prowling around Oregon City for the purpose of kidnapping children and hold ng them for rewards. Wouldn't a rope's end cure such parties?

Ex Sheriff Myers of Clackamas county declines to give up the office of Sheriff but the county authorities recognize Sheriff Warner, who does the business Myers holds on to the joy of the last as the last token of his departed dignity and power

The Corvallis Mercury says Klamath Joe, formerly Chief of the Klamaths is stopping about town at present He is 120 years old yet is vigorous and sprightly His lofty bearing contrasts very remarkably with the generally stupid appearance of the Indians of the Pacific

THE ELECTION

Official Vote of the State



THE TERRITORIES

A force of twenty men are taking out about 100 tons per week from the upper levels of the Poorman at Owyhee

There is a ledge at Owyhee called the Chipmunk It is only four inches wide but yields astonishingly in gold The rock is easily worked and the owner of the ledge is getting it out by hand

The Olympia Tribune states that the Starr Brothers are negociating for the purchase of the Antelope one of the finest steamers at San Francisco They want her for winter service on Puget Sound

The plant of the Steilacoom Herald has been purchased by Al Pettygrove, who will start a new paper at Port Townsend. A new paper is to be published semi weekly will also be started at Seattle

The lumber business at San Francisco and all along the coast is so dull that the owners of the Puget bound mills propose to close them until the market has been cleared of the material now on hand

E T Coleman, the well known artist whose successful ascent of Mount Baker, two years ago, won him much renown and whose adventures on that occasion formed the subject of an able paper in Harper's Magazine has started for a trip to the summit of Mount Ranier

The clipper ship now building at Port Madison W T is expected to be completed by the last of August next She is the first vessel of her class ever attempted on the Pacific coast, and is Moore & Gawley, the proprietors of the Port Madison Mills, all credit is due This vessel will be when completed 206 feet in length 40 feet beam, and 22 feet deep of 1 200 tons burthen.

A Puget Sound paper says The steamer Constantine was at Port Townsend on Wednesday and was expected to leave on the 1st inst for Sitka. The Shooting Star had arrived from the North, with 35 000 codfish, the reports that the schooner Alaska has gone to the Ookotsk Sea The ship Lady Bowen which loaded at Port Gamble, had a difficult time in securing a crew Having secured the requisite number, they watched the first favorable opportunity and bolted and a second crew having been shipped with difficulty who also stampeded to shirk duty the vessel put to sea on Tuesday She is bound for China

MARRIED—COMPLIMENTS.—On Thursday the notice of the marriage of our friend Sam. Hillman and Miss Richardson, together with the "compliments" of the parties, was handed in to the business office of this paper, but through some mistake, failed to get any further. Yesterday the notice and the bottles and cake turned up. This morning the notice appears where it should, while the "compliments" have disappeared as such things always do when brought to these headquarters.

MILITARY ORDER.—The following is the text of an order issued July 6th, from Headquarters Department of the Columbia:

"General Orders, No. 15—Major John S. Walker, Paymaster, having reported at these Headquarters, as directed in Paragraph IV, Special Orders No. 65, current series, from the Adjutant General's Office, is hereby assigned to duty in this city."

CARDS.—We have received from the Dalles certain documents which indicate that our brother William M. Han..., of the Mountaineer, is about to pass away from the dismal swamps of Bachelordom to enter the blissful regions of matrimony. We trust that William will have a happy and prosperous voyage on the other side (our side) of the line.

SPECIAL MEETING OF THE G. A. R.—There will be a special meeting of Baker Post No. 1, G. A. R., at the usual place, at half past eight o'clock this, Saturday, evening, for installation of officers and muster-in of recruits. A full attendance required.

By order of the Commander.

BRIEF MENTION.—An apron ball at the White House is announced for next Thursday.

The 23d Infantry Band proposes to hold a Concert at the Canyon Garden on Sunday, 10th inst.

The name of the New Columbian Hotel has been changed to "International."

GRADUATING EXERCISES.—The exercises of the graduating class of the Portland Academy and Female Seminary will take place in the M. E. Church, corner of Taylor and Third streets, Friday, July 15th, at 2 o'clock P. M. The invitation to attend is general.

CHURCH SERVICES.—The Unitarian Church will be open for religious services at the usual hour Sunday morning (11 o'clock A. M.), conducted by Rev. Mr. Wilber. Sunday School after the morning services.

MISSIONARY CONCERT.—A Sunday School Missionary Concert of the M. E. Church, in East Portland, will be held at the Church next Sunday, July 10th, at 2 o'clock P. M.

THE PROFITS.—The receipts of the 4th of July railroad excursion were only about $100 in excess of the expenses. Not enough to pay for the wear and tear.

MEETING OF PIONEERS.—The Pioneer B. B. Club will hold a meeting this evening at Buchtel's Gallery, for the transaction of business.

CIRCUS.—Workmen are engaged in fitting up for Nelson's circus, at the corner of Morrison and Fifth streets.

FOR ALASKA.—The propeller Geo. S. Wright will sail for Sitka and other Alaskan ports, this evening.

SAILED.—The steamship California, sailed last evening for Victoria and Puget Sound ports.

THE LABOR EXCHANGE.

STATEMENT EXHIBITING THE BUSINESS OF THE LABOR EXCHANGE FROM SEPT. 27, 1869, TO JULY 1, 1870. SUBMITTED TO THE PORTLAND BOARD OF TRADE, JULY 7, 1870.

The office was opened Sept. 27, 1869. The following is a summary of its operations from that date to July 1st, 1870.

Letters received from other States, making inquiries about Oregon:

MONTH	NO. OF LETTERS	MONTH	NO. OF LETTERS
1869.		1870
October	6	February	17
November	9	March	212
December	12	April	114
1870.		May	48
January	14	June	128
Total			557

Classified by States in which the writers reside, there were from Arkansas, 1; from California, 18; Connecticut, 2; Delaware, 1; Dacota, 1; District Columbia, 1; Illinois, 156; Iowa, 55; Indiana, 26; Kansas, 15; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Michigan 30; Minnesota, 31; Missouri, 90; Mississippi, 2; Maryland, 2; Nebraska, 5; New Hampshire, 1; New York, 95; Nevada, 3; North Carolina, 1; Ohio, 21; Pennsylvania, 5; Prince Edwards Island, 1; Tennessee, 9; Utah, 1; Vermont, 1; Wisconsin, 45; Wyoming, 5. Total—557.

Classified by the various occupations of the writers, there were, farmers and those who inquire for farming lands, 203; business men, 65; mechanics and laboring men, 84; professional men, teachers and clerks, 51; the remainder, numbering 154, do not indicate by their letters what their avocation may be, but simply apply for printed matter and general information.

Last December the Association published 5,000 pamphlets containing information relative to the resources of the State, of a general character. These were all distributed by the middle of April. About 400 copies of Dufur's statistics and several hundred copies of daily and weekly newspapers, published here and elsewhere in the State, were distributed during the same period. These publications served to attract public attention towards Oregon, particularly in the Northwestern States, and rendered necessary another publication containing information more in detail and more varied in character than the one that preceded it. This was prepared, and 5,000 copies of it published in the month of April. Since then, 3,000 copies have been distributed — a great many of them by citizens of all parts of the State, who found that mailing one of the pamphlets, to their friends living in other States, served a good purpose in answering questions about the resources and climate of Oregon. About 2,000 copies are still on hand for further distribution.

A record is kept in the office of the arrivals and departures of passengers at Portland, by the ocean steamers.

From the 1st of January to the 1st of July, the number of arrivals was 3,892; the number of departures, 1,234; excess of arrivals, 2,658. All accounts agree that a good many people have gone into Eastern and Southern Oregon by overland routes. Estimating this class of immigration to number 450 in both sections, would give the State an aggregate increase of its population of three thousand people during the last six months. It cannot be determined with any degree of accuracy what proportion of these people were induced to come here by the efforts of this association. That a large proportion of them were so influenced, either directly or indirectly, is admitted on all sides. Generally speaking they are a class of people capable of helping themselves. Many of them brought into the State large amounts of money to invest in lands and other property. If we allow that our three thousand immigrants have brought into the State an average of $200 each, in money, it would give us an addition of $600,000 to the actual wealth of the State. That this is not a high estimate may be inferred from the fact that the New York Emigration Commissioners have ascertained that European emigrants bring with them to the United States, an average of $68 00, each, in money. Oregon has been getting a class of immigration entirely different from that which lands at Castle Garden.

Mr. Jacob Stitzel, of this city, estimates that the firm of Stitzel & Upton have sold within the past six months, $200,000 worth of farming lands to immigrants, and that about three fourths of the people making these purchases were influenced, directly, by the publications of the Board, to come here.

The office is provided with a considerable amount of general information for the benefit of those immigrants who want Government lands, but it is too indefinite to be of much practical service to strangers. Thus far nearly all immigrants have preferred to buy lands; but in case of a large immigration seeking public lands for settlement, it will be necessary to provide maps and plats in detail of the vacant lands of Northern Oregon and the border counties in Washington Territory.

In the collection of statistics, enough has been done to enable the Board to embody in its publication a collection of facts sufficient to enable people in other sections of the country to form an intelligent judgment on the business, commerce and agricultural resources of the State. But nothing has been done towards collecting statistics in detail of the agricultural and manufacturing products of the State. It is a difficult thing to do. Our State Legislature has never had any provision for collecting such statistics by the county officers of the several counties, or otherwise, and any efforts in that direction made by a private association would be attended with too much expense to be considered practicable. In other States it is common for the county assessors to collect all such statistics while making the annual assessment of property, and report it in tabular form to some department of the State government. They are required to do this by law and receive a per diem for their services the same as for their regular work.

The U. S. census reports when published, will give us the statistics of the State complete and in detail, for this year.

OPERATION OF THE EMPLOYMENT OFFICE FROM SEPT. 27, 1869, TO JULY 1, 1870.

Year	Month	Applications	Engagements
1869	October	78	29
	November	92	24
	December	35	13
1870	January	58	35
	February	70	35
	March	110	25
	April	104	90
	May	120	76
	June	116	60
	Total	713	333

The applicants for employment, classified by nationalities were: American, 290; Irish, 147; English, 45; Bulgarian, 1; French, 20; Swedes, 22; German, 83; Canadian, 21; Scotch, 26; Dane, 17; Portuguese, 3; Pole, 1; Finn, 1; Welsh, 5; Norwegian, 4; Slavonian, 3; Australian, 3. Of the 713 applicants, 92 were married and 621 single. Of the 333 engagements, 72 were married persons and 261 single persons; 93 had been in the country as much as six months preceding the date of their engagements, and 256 less than that length of time. Of the whole remainder of applicants, 165 had been in Oregon for six months at the time of their application. Notwithstanding the number of applications is largely in excess of the number of engagements, there have been times when the office could not fill all the orders on the books. In the month of April orders for 14 persons remained unfilled; in the month of May, 35; and in June, 34. This arises partly from a disinclination on the part of some persons to go into the country to work, and partly because a particular class of hands could not be found just at the time they were wanted.

An important feature in the business of the office is the facilities it offers for imparting information to strangers when they arrive here. For the past three months it has been usual, on the arrival of every steamer, for numbers of people to apply at the office for information concerning the geography of the State, routes and cost of travel to different parts, the healthfulness of different sections, the agricultural facilities and price of land in various localities, the prospect for business or employment in this, that or the other place, and many other things of that nature that strangers in a new country are anxious to learn. The office prepared to furnish these people with information of every kind, except that there is a deficiency of maps. A good pocket map of Oregon and Washington Territory, is wanted badly.

OUR CITIZENS certainly deserve credit, for the energy they display to make the Oregon Immigration and Labor Exchange a success and benefit to the State, as well as the immigrant coming to our State. Every citizen should give all the aid in their power to help the large number of strangers coming to our State, and not forget to inform them that Kohn & Fishel, No. 91 Front street, have the largest stock of clothing in Oregon; other goods are of superior quality and sold at extreme low prices.

Three Requisites of Health.
If all the sickly people in the world were to take to their beds, and demand medical treatment, there would not be doctors enough to attend them, nor a sufficient number of the robust to nurse them. Three conditions are absolutely essential to health viz: a good appetite, easy digestion and the ability to sleep soundly. Seven-eighths of the many thousands who suffer from indigestion, yet do not labor under serious disease, complain that they "can't eat," that their stomachs are "out of order," or that they "don't sleep well." For this class of ailments few persons think of calling in a physician. Nor is it necessary, inasmuch as a course of Hostetter's Bitters, will certainly relieve the derangements of the stomach, the liver, and the nervous system, from which want of appetite, indigestion and sleeplessness arise. This excellent vegetable tonic and corrective is also a delightful anodyne. Inasmuch (or incapacity to sleep) which has resisted all the ordinary remedies, will yield readily to this pleasant sedative taken just before retiring to rest. In ordinary medical practice it is usual to give a stomachic, an aperient, an invigorant, a soporific, or an antiseptic, as the case for the time being, may seem more particularly to require; but in this grand restorative all these medicinal properties, and many others are blended in due proportion. Thus the digestion is stimulated, while the bowels are regulated, the liver toned, the strength recruited, the nerves calmed, the fluids purified and the circulation equalized. It is believed that there is no other reparative and regulating medicine in the world which acts so beneficially and agreeably upon all the assimilating and secretive organs at the same time, and to all who lack the first essential principles of health and enjoyment, a vigorous appetite, sound digestion and refreshing sleep, it is confidently recommended for a specific.

COLONEL HAWKINS.

A Famous Bohemian on a Famous Kentuckian.

"Did you ever hear of Tom Hawkins?" said a man of politics to me yesterday. Tom Hawkins is the greatest duelist in Kentucky. He is now Gen. Stevenson's tobacco inspector at Louisville—a handsome man, with a black mustache, and large, glaring, black eyes, which seldom or never wink but look out like a tiger's, with silent ferocity. He is perhaps, fifty years of age, now but still one of the best shots in Kentucky and he has fixed up more quarrels, and been a second on more S fls than any other man alive.

Personally, he is a gentle, truthful, faithful fellow, but he is deadly when he has made up his mind to eat somebody. Tom is one of the best of his class, the finished duelist of the South, always nice upon points of honor, and prompt to advise anybody to fight whom he thinks has been injured. His last appearance in proximity to the "field of honor" was occasioned by a mooted duel between two Cincinnati editors, which never came to a shot. People who know him send for Tom in case of a duel, just as you send for a physician and the preacher when you are sick. He was wounded at Buena Vista, and he was with Henderson, Cuttenden, Lopez and the rest when they invaded Cuba. During the war he was on Breckinridge's staff, and the affairs of private blood in which he has been engaged are innumerable. For instance, he was Ben Johnson's second when he killed Tom White. Did you ever hear of that?

No! Oh! Tom Hawkins had to leave the State for some years after that duel. Old man White was there when Ben shot his son, and he went on awfully. The papers raised a howling row about that duel. Tom White and Ben Johnson had a fuss over cards, both pretty full, and a challenge passed. The women and families on both sides took a big interest in it, and Ben's mother molded the balls with her own hands. She was all up and alive about it. I reckon she'd shot Ben herself if he hadn't gone to the field. Ben was all crippled up with rheumatism, and they had to set him up and hand him his gun. They fought with shotguns loaded with ball. There was the old man White, hugging in the field about points of order, the terms of apology, etc., etc., when "pop" went the guns, and his son lay dead at the old man's feet, with a hole right through his forehead. They say it was dreadful to hear him go on. I don't know what became of Ben Johnson.

Tom Hawkins scared John Pope most dead once. They were at old General Wood's table, when Pope impugned the courage of General ——, and Tom Hawkins just glanced and opened out. John Pope had to take water.

Tom was Breckinridge's second when the challenge passed between John and Cutting. There Tom showed the generalship of Alexander the Great. Cutting's second was old President Monroe's son of the regular army, and Tom turned him inside out. He put him on the defensive, thundered at him, and got John Breckinridge off with the honors.

Tom Hawkins is a terrible fellow. If he looks at you with his wide open eyes full of ferocity, you are half gone already. When they tried Henderson in New Orleans, and Judah Benjamin was employed by the Spanish government to assist in the prosecution, Tom, whose trial was to follow, saw what a terrible tongue Benjamin had, and he followed him out of the court-room: and said: "Look here, Mr. Jew, I want to tell you something. If when my trial comes off, you say one word against my character, I'll kill you in your tracks." Bejamin saw those big eyes ready to jump out of Tom's head, and he said: "Mr. Hawkins, I shall not want to have any difficulty with you, sir." They did not convict Henderson, and Tom never came to trial.

I reckon you never heard of Tom Hawkins' connection with the Fitch and Stephen A. Douglas trial, did you? That has never been published to my knowledge, but it was a remarkable episode in the preface to the rebellion. You see it was coming on toward the political convention of 1859, and Douglas had all the strength, so that it was held on to a certainty that he would be nominated and crowd out the Bucanan party.

I got sure information of the nightly caucuses of Slidell, Jesse D. Bright, Howell Cobb, Benjamin, and that faction in Washington—for they met at Cobb's house chiefly, and one day it came to me straight as a wire that they had determined to force Douglas into a fight, and that it had been proposed that Slidell should insult Douglas in the drinking saloon in the Senate, and if he resented it, shoot him down. I wrote to Douglas at once, but knowing his habits so well of leaving letters unopened for days and weeks together, I sent the letter to a friend, and commanded him to make Douglas open it and peruse it, that he might be prepared. And in the letter I said: "If you are pushed to the wall, telegraph for Tom Hawkins, of Louisville."

Well, I came on from the South soon after that, and went up with George Pugh to see Douglas. There we found nobody to pay much attention to us. Douglas seemed absorbed with something else, and looking out of his library across the hall, I saw Roger A. Pryor and Albert G. Brown, of Mississippi, step into another room. I asked no questions, but came away, and soon afterward started for New York. When I got to the Relay House there was about three minutes' delay, as the Western train had just come in, and I saw get out of it and step toward the Washington train—who, but Tom Hawkins?

"Tom," I cried, "what are you doing here?"

"What are you doing away from Washington?" said Tom.

"Going to New York."

"New York, what? Do you get no here and then run off to New York? Douglas has sent for me. The fight's on!"

"I'll get off my baggage at Baltimore," said I, "and return to Washington tonight."

And with that the trains steamed contrary ways.

I found out the matter at Washington that same evening. The conspirators had arranged to force an insult upon Douglas, and then, if he challenged, he would lose the vote of the North. If he refused, nobody in the South would touch him. The creature of the conspirators to insult Douglas was G. N. Fitch, of Indiana—still alive, I believe—and he had done it in executive session the day before I reached the city. Douglas had demanded a retraction or a fight, and Tom Hawkins had been sent for.

I found the Douglas household all warm for the duel. Mrs. Douglas and the Curtises and everybody were bound to see Stephen out. His wife said he might lose the Presidency or anything before he should be beaten by Jesse Bright and old Buck's myrmidons. Bilbo Haus had been passing all day between the Buchanan headquarters, in the Vice President's room of the Capitol, and one of the committee rooms where the Douglas men sat in council. The messenger for Douglas was Roger A. Pryor, and for Fitch, Judah P. Benjamin. The Fitch gang were Slidell, who was the arch conspirator, and bloodthirsty as a bat; Bright, who was jealous of Douglas and despised him; Cobb, etc. Judah P. Benjamin, the second day, came into the committee room with another letter, and, among Richardson, of Illinois, Pugh, Pryor, Brown and the rest, saw Tom Hawkins glancing at him they say he shrank back and turned pale. Then he put out his hand in a sycophantish way and said: "Why, Mr. Hawkins, I'm very glad to see you."

We met that night, and Tom went in place of Pryor, to arrange the particulars, and force a fight or peace. We knew by his look that the thing was serious. They knew that it was coming to be blood by Tom's big eyes. And they wrote a retraction. He had it in ten minutes.

We arranged to try Douglas courage by telling him that the duel was to come off next morning. Tom, who was a simple hearted fellow, raised objections, to this, and refused to have anything to do with it. We entered Douglas' library, and there he stood, with as pleasant a smile as I ever saw waiting to hear the result.

"Mr. Douglas," said I, "how do you feel?"

"Very well. What is the news?"

"You are to go to the field to-morrow morning at 5 o'clock, and fight with shotguns."

We'd looked at him piercingly, to see how he stood it.

"Very well," he said, "make all the arrangements."

We watched him again, and he was as quiet as I ever saw him—almost cheerful. Tom Hawkins could stand it no more. He said: "Mr. Douglas, they have retracted!"

Douglas drew a sigh, whether of relief or regret, I do not know. He was a splendid shot with a fowling piece, and he would have forced his weight in wild cats rather than be crowded out of the path of his ambition. He was the greatest leader any party ever had, to my mind. "Do you want to be introduced to Tom Hawkins?" "No," said I, without thinking about it; "it is too offensive, I prefer not to know Tom Hawkins."—George Alfred Townsend, Washington Letter to the Chicago Tribune.

The Two Parties.

[From the Cincinnati Gazette.]

In the practical future it is very evident that the Republican party will remain in power for several years longer, no matter what events occur. In any probable political condition of affairs, the Senate will contain a Republican majority for five years to come. But the Democrats hope to gain in the House of Representatives; but to do that, requires that they should prepare something different from the Republicans, in each district, and present some idea which the people will think better when carried out in practice. What are they? Let us suppose a Democratic and a Republican candidate going out to canvass each Congressional district in Ohio; what are their principles? The Democrat, according to the whole tenor of the Democratic press and conventions, must stand on these grounds:

1. According to the Columbus Convention and others, he must say that the 15th Amendment must be repealed, and the laws under it taken away, depriving the negro of franchise and of the right of protection. He must say this, and at once array himself against humanity, Christianity, and civilization.

2. He must say he will tax the bonds, and pay them, if he can, in greenbacks. That is, the Government having given its note for given sums of money, and having the power, deliberately cuts off a part of every note an act which would disgrace any merchant on the face of the earth. That he must say.

3. He must say he is for free trade. His party has denounced not only any direct but any indirect protective tariff for years on years. Every free trader in the country, except the Evening Post (if that be Republican) is in the Democratic party, and when it was in power it went as far as it dare in making a horizontal tariff, averaging 15 per cent., which, if it were done to-day, would throw industry into utter confusion and bring on a great commercial convulsion.

These are what the Democratic candidates must say, or dodge. They will do much of dodging, no doubt, but they must be held up squarely to the only principles they have declared. Now, what will the Republican candidate say?

1. He will say he is for the 15th Amendment and the laws which enforce it, because the Republican party is the party of Humanity and progress, while his opponent belong to the party of oppression, obsolete ideas and of dead issues.

2. He will say that he is for the Government being as honest as the people, and what a Chamber of Commerce wouldn't do he won't do. He will pay the public debt honestly, and in order to do that will economize the public expenditures as much as possible; levy as few taxes as is consistent with being honest and supporting the Government, and direct the whole financial machinery of Government to bring as little burdensome and as largely beneficial to the people as possible. To show that the Republican party is in earnest on this point he will point to its triumphant success in reducing both debt and taxes by hundreds of millions of dollars. Senator Sherman shows that the acts now before Congress (which in some form will pass) will reduce the taxes fifty millions, and that this, with three previous acts passed, reduces the amount of taxes levied just after the war, by more than two hundred millions of dollars per annum. At the same time the funded debt has been reduced three hundred millions. If this is not financial success, we know not where it can be found.

3. He will say that he is not for free trade, but for such a judicious tariff as will give incidental protection to American labor, while it raises a revenue sufficient for the purposes of Government. He will be neither for free trade nor prohibition, but for such a moderate protective tariff as all thegreat men of the old Democratic party were for—such as Madison and Jackson both advocated, and such as is absolutely necessary to protect the American laborer in the pursuit of his ordinary business. In this sketch of the position, which much be taken in the Congressional elections, we have left out of view one idea, which many men in the Democratic party advance, and which their leaders may adopt. That is repudiation. For the honor of our country we should like to say no such idea is held, but many men in the Democratic party have the unblushing audacity to avow what would disgrace America and disgrace human nature.

General Grant.

[From the Albany (N. Y.) Journal.]

The Democrats fear Gen. Grant more than they fear the Republican party, because they deem him stronger than his party. There are undoubtedly many outside of that organization, whose gratitude for his services and whose convictions of his unswerving honesty, make them his friends irrespective of his politics. But neither General Grant nor any other man can have any available strength independently of his party. And no man can long retain strength with his party who is indifferent to its principles.

Gen. Grant is strong with his party because he is true to its principles. In no instance has he wavered a hair's breadth in his fidelity to any one of those principles. Others may waver and hesitate, but he stands as firm as a rock. He deserves no especial credit for this; for firmness is a part of his nature, as instability is the predominating trait in the character of those who are "every thing by turns and nothing long."

This stability constitutes his strength. Errors or differences on new and minor questions are tolerated because of the settled conviction that on every vital issue on every defined and recognized principle of the Republican party he will exhibit neither "vacillation nor shadow of turning."

It would be a source of great joy to the leaders of the Democratic party if they could find Gen. Grant tripping on some principle having a distinctive Republican character, because they covet a breach between the President and the party which elected him. They have no other hope of success in '72.

But there is to be no such breach. Even disappointed aspirants for position could gain nothing by it. For such a breach in the Republican party as would (for no violation of principle) place Gen. Grant outside of it would render the party too weak to be of any practical service to any one in the future.

Whatever may seem like disagreements among Republicans in our National Councils results from differences of opinion on side issues only. On all essentials there is harmony, and in nothing is there greater harmony than in the opinion that Gen. Grant has done nothing to forfeit the confidence of the party, or to render it necessary to recede from its support for another term. If he is not the Republican candidate in 1872, it will be for something he may do or have done in the future; not for any thing he has done or left undone in the past.

James Henri Browne writes of his friend A. D. Richardson as follows: "Richardson's coolness and self-possession under the most trying circumstances were unsurpassed—were beyond those of any man I met. He was cheerful, and could jest in the very face of death, which absolutely had no terror for him. I have seen the dark doors open before him again and again, and he looked through the shadowy space as serenely as if Armida's enchanted garden lay beyond. When at last struck down by an assassin's hand, and the surgeon came to his side, he said with perfect calmness, though suffering intense agony: 'Well, Doctor, the wound is mortal, isn't it.' 'Yes; I have no doubt of it.' 'How long shall I probably live?' 'You may die in two hours, and you may live twenty-four.' 'Do you think I can live till to-morrow morning?' 'I think you will.' 'Very well. That is enough, and I'm best for in his dexterity to arrange his affairs. A splendid financier, indeed! at the very moment of finishing friend called on him for a loan of $5,000 after the occurrence. How did that strike the fainting Albert?' 'Prescient of the fact that the man who has been hunting me has murdered as a marksman. Though killing a man at four feet who doesn't see you can't be very remarkable shooting after all. That sounds ghastly, perhaps; but it was Richardson, through and through.'
